Dear colleagues,

We are very pleased to announce the opening of registration to the third edition of the International Winter School: "Contemporary challenges for Latin America: economy, environment, natural resources, foods, security". It will be held from July 27th to August 7th in the city of Santa Fe (Argentina).

All undergraduate international students are welcome to the UNL's Winter School but they must know that courses will be taught in Spanish.

Latin American themes

What's going on in Latin America?, that is the key question for the UNL Winter School.

The goal of UNL winter School is to cover a wide range of topics of the Latin American contemporary process from several perspectives and disciplines. For over two weeks, professors and researcher of sciences, economics, business, and political sciences from different countries intent to answer the questions through seminars and interactive activities where student participation is encouraged.

Topics for the 2015 edition:

- Energy, natural resources and sustainable development
- Social equity and food sovereignty
- Social conflicts, crime and Human Rights
- Production of knowledge and innovation to economic development

The academic offer is complemented with cultural and recreational activities aiming for foreign students to learn about the culture the customs and history of the city of Santa Fe and its region.
